Made in Germany – JEMAKO receives award from Stern

JEMAKO has received the 'Trust in Germany – Made in Germany' award from Stern magazine.

JEMAKO has been successfully developing, researching and producing in the Münsterland region for many years. The specialist for cleaning and care products has now been awarded the Made in Germany seal of approval by Stern for its efforts. For JEMAKO, the high quality of the products is the result of combining high tech and precise German craftsmanship.

Only those companies whose essential development, production and refinement takes place in Germany, such as JEMAKO, received the award as part of a study with independent experts from the Hamburg Institute of International Economics (HWWI) entitled 'Trust in Germany'.

JEMAKO attaches the utmost importance to the Made in Germany production standards at the Rhede and Nettetal sites. As well as performance, innovative strength is also one of the success factors in international competition for the medium-sized company. Founder and managing director Gregor Kohlruss sets the highest standards for himself and his employees to ensure a harmonious relationship between the products, people and nature: 'We stand for responsibly manufactured products and fair treatment of customers and business partners. We create an environment that employees enjoy working in.'
